

Track Your Medical Tests and Procedures

If you are seeing a new provider, it is helpful to bring a copy of your medical records and the results of any test or procedures that have been done. This is particularly important if you are seeing a number of different providers for a health concern. You can keep this information stored in an online personal health record, but if you prefer paper records, you can use this form.

Test or Procedure	Date	Results